

JOSEPH LIU BIO

Joseph Liu is dedicated to helping professionals bravely relaunch their careers by more effectively marketing their personal brands. Having gone through three major career changes himself, he believes making the effort to do meaningful work is absolutely worth it.

As a keynote speaker, career consultant, podcast host, and certified coach, Joseph helps professionals define and market their personal brands more effectively during times of career transition, applying branding and marketing principles from his 10 years of international brand management experiences at companies in the US & UK including Clorox, Gü Puds, and General Mills.

Joseph has been a featured speaker at Red Bull, VMware, LEK Consulting, Chatham House, TEDx, The Guardian, Management Today, MarketingWeek Live, General Assembly, London Business School, and Kellogg School of Management. He's also been featured in Forbes, Fast Company, Glassdoor, Huffpost, Lifehacker, Monster, Motley Fool, Career Builder, The Muse, Real Simple, Ladders, SUCCESS, Slate, and Marketing Week.

He hosts the Career Relaunch podcast, featuring inspiring stories of career change. The podcast has ranked as a top 10 career podcast in the US & UK with listeners in 163 countries, and has featured as a top business podcast for entrepreneurs in Forbes, the "best podcast for transitioning to a new career" in Glassdoor, and a top podcast to "help you find a job" in Business Insider.

He received his Associate Certified Coach (ACC) credential from the International Coach Federation, MBA from the University of Michigan Ross School of Business, and Bachelors of Arts in Psychology from Northwestern University.
